WHY A CSUN MASTER'S DEGREE IN TAXATION

CSUN's M.S. in Taxation (MST) is offered by the David Nazarian College of Business and Economics – one of the nation's largest business schools.

This advanced degree was created to help those in the field of taxation progress and excel in their professional careers. Our flexible program gives participants the choice to attend virtually or in-person to get the preparation they need to become professional tax advisers and consultants, as well as leading practitioners in both the private and public sectors.

A graduate degree in taxation offers practitioners the opportunity to advance in this increasingly complex field and command higher levels of compensation. According to the Robert Half 2015 Salary Guide, annual earnings of tax practitioners in large public accounting firms range from $63,250 to $83,250 for individuals with one to three years of experience. Individuals with master's degrees typically earn up to 10 percent more.

In addition, this 18-month program provides the advanced knowledge and strong grounding in technical skills necessary for promotion to more senior positions in this complex, growing and rewarding field.

This graduate-level tax program helps to fulfill the most recent educational requirements for the California CPA licensure of 150 credit-unit hours.

Eighty-nine percent of the most recent graduating M.S. in Taxation cohort received a promotion or a raise within six months after graduation.

CSUN's David Nazarian College of Business and Economics is recognized in the Princeton Review's list of Best Business Schools.

"Imagine a well-regarded graduate tax program where you can redefine your career potential and amplify your understanding of the field of taxation through a practice-oriented and rigorous curriculum taught by leading professionals from the field. I am proud to be part of this innovative program here at Cal State Northridge."

— Professor Robert Johnson
Tax Partner and Managing Director, State & Local Tax
Practice, KPMG, LLP

DISTINGUISHING FEATURES OF CSUN'S MASTER OF SCIENCE IN TAXATION

SKILLS-BASED FOCUS: The program focuses on developing the highly specialized writing and research skills essential for the growth and success of today's tax practitioner.

MIDCAREER-PROFESSIONAL STUDENT BODY: This cutting edge program is tailored to prepare midcareer professionals for advancement in the field of taxation.

COHORT FORMAT: Students enter the MST program and proceed through the curriculum as a group. This format provides students with the advantages of guaranteed enrollment in every class and a predetermined schedule of classes for the entire program. The cohort format also provides opportunities for maximizing interaction with the faculty and developing valuable networking relationships with fellow students.

CONVENIENT SCHEDULING: The program offers students the flexibility to attend class in-person or connect virtually – during scheduled class times – from home or in the office. Courses are scheduled one weeknight per week and some Saturdays, and no classes are held during tax season.

PRACTITIONER-FACULTY: Courses are taught primarily by leading practitioners in the field. This blend of active experience and outstanding scholarship in the field of taxation adds immeasurably to the learning experience.

PRACTICE-ORIENTED: The program integrates theory and practice throughout the curriculum and provides multiple outstanding clinical experience opportunities, including participation in the Bookstein Low Income Taxpayer Clinic, the Bookstein Community Outreach Tax Clinic, the CSUN Volunteer Income Tax Assistance Clinic, and involvement with the student-run Tax Development Journal. Each of these clinical experiences serves to integrate the material learned in the program while providing unique opportunities to gain valuable practical experience.

TAX-PLANNING FOCUS: The program incorporates a seminar on innovative tax-planning strategies.

EXTERNAL CONNECTIONS: The Bookstein Institute for Higher Education in Taxation facilitates advanced tax education, research projects and scholarships, and attracts outside support from business professionals and leaders. Both the program and the Bookstein Institute are committed to developing mutually beneficial relationships with the business community that allow for networking opportunities and exchanges of knowledge.

ACCREDITATION: The MST program is offered through CSUN's David Nazarian College of Business and Economics, which is accredited by the leading business school accrediting agency, the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB). The university is accredited by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC).

"I really enjoyed the MST program at CSUN; it has opened new opportunities and horizons to me. Our instructors not only polished our technical and professional skills but also mentored us throughout the entire program and inspired us to make a difference in the field of taxation."

— Stanislava Niatylka, MST, CPA

IN-PERSON OR VIRTUAL – CSUN'S M.S. IN TAXATION PROGRAM ALLOWS YOU TO CHOOSE YOUR MODE OF PARTICIPATION

Life doesn't stop so you can earn your degree, so CSUN has made innovative use of today's technologies to give you a choice between the benefits of a traditional classroom experience and the flexibility of a virtual option. CSUN has developed this highly adaptable approach to allow you to adjust the way you choose to attend class based on your preferences and schedule constraints each week.

This new freedom permits you to attend class in-person or connect virtually at the scheduled class times. With this approach, you can participate in weekly classes, listen to lectures, and engage in discussions, all from your computer – at home, in the office, or on the road. You can also change your mode of participation week-to-week. That means you might choose to attend class on the CSUN campus and interact with faculty and fellow students in-person one week, and then participate virtually the next. Some program participants may choose to attend in-person nearly all the time while others might find virtual participation more appealing.

The power to choose between in-person and virtual attendance gives program participants firsthand practice with mixed-mode teamwork and technologies that play a crucial role – and serve as an important professional skill – in the globally-connected business world.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Upon successful completion of the program, graduates will be able to

- Research tax literature and apply their conceptual understanding of taxation to both structured and unstructured problems;
- Communicate their analyses of complex taxation problems in clear, effective writing;
- Analyze and solve tax problems through the application of critical-thinking skills;
- Recognize and analyze ethical and professional responsibility issues in tax practice; and
- Conduct comprehensive analytical reviews of client's tax returns.

"The master's in taxation program has given me the skills to move from tax preparation to strategic tax planning."

— Leslie Sobol, CPA, MST
Tax Partner, Lucas, Horsfall, Murphy
& Pindroh LLP

CSUN'S APPROACH TO SUPPORTING THE EDUCATIONAL SUCCESS OF MIDCAREER PROFESSIONALS

CSUN provides a number of student-support services, designed to assist midcareer professionals in completing their graduate programs successfully.

- Program coordinators are assigned to each cohort and assist students from application through graduation. They provide direct personal support and address any program-related concerns so students do not have to navigate the university's administrative systems.
- Academic leads are designated faculty members who provide academic guidance, respond to students' questions, and coordinate the work of the program's faculty to ensure a comprehensive learning experience.
- Dedicated financial aid experts are skilled in assisting professional students in the process so they receive aid quickly and efficiently.
- Specialized online application system for midcareer professionals enables a timely response and easy communication with applicants.
- Additional support services geared specifically to working professionals are available.

"This program has impacted my current job. Everything that I learned in this program had a direct application to what I do at work. I recently returned from our firm's training and I was able to see how much more I know compared to my peers. I cannot think of any other program that could have helped me as much as this program has."

— Aleksey Lanis
Tax Manager, EY

THE ADVANTAGES OF THE CAREFULLY CRAFTED CURRICULUM

CSUN's MST program has a carefully crafted curriculum designed for the cohort format. In this format, each course builds upon prior courses to provide students with essential and versatile professional knowledge, skills and abilities.

COURSE LIST (30 UNITS)

To earn the MST, candidates must complete 30 units of coursework (as described below), with at least a 3.0 grade-point average. For full course descriptions, visit tax.csun.edu.

CORE SKILLS (3 UNITS)

ACCT 509: TAX ETHICS, RESEARCH AND COMMUNICATION

In this foundation course, students will develop vital skills to research and critically interpret tax authority. They will also acquire and build the specialized oral and written communication skills needed to interact internally and externally with clients and government agencies. This course will also introduce students to the professional responsibilities and ethical dilemmas that face tax practitioners in today's challenging and increasingly complex professional environment

CORE KNOWLEDGE (15 UNITS)

These five courses provide in-depth knowledge of key areas in the field of taxation. Each course integrates tax research, written communication and critical thinking skills with the curriculum and pedagogy. Certain courses also integrate skills in analytical review, compilation and oral communication and provide advanced instruction in professional ethics and responsibilities.

ACCT 520: INCOME TAX CONCEPTS AND THEIR BUSINESS APPLICATIONS

This course covers basic tax law concepts that affect business and investment-management situations. Topics include tax alternatives in business organizations, tax-policy management, and compliance with government directives.

ACCT 629: INCOME TAXATION OF CORPORATIONS AND SHAREHOLDERS I

Income tax principles relating to the organization, capital structure and operations of a corporation are examined as well as the tax effects of corporate distributions, stock redemptions and liquidations on shareholders.

ACCT 633: INCOME TAXATION OF PARTNERSHIPS

Students learn about the tax principles that apply to the formation, operation and liquidation of partnerships, including the effects of the transfer of partnership interests and transactions between the partnership and its partners.

ACCT 640: ACCOUNTING METHODS AND PERIODS

This course covers comparative principles of tax and financial accounting as they relate to individuals, corporations, partnerships, estates and trusts. The allocation of income tax expense for financial statement purposes is also examined.

ACCT 645: FEDERAL TAX PROCEDURE

Administrative procedures for settling tax controversies, rules governing tax collection and criminal prosecution, and the rights of taxpayers are among the topics explored in this course.

FIELDS OF SPECIALIZATIONS (9 UNITS – COURSE OFFERINGS ARE SUBJECT TO CHANGE)

ACCT 631: INCOME TAXATION OF CORPORATIONS AND SHAREHOLDERS II

This continuation course examines tax principles involved in the division, reorganization, combination and affiliation of corporations as well as the tax effects of these actions on shareholders.

ACCT 635: FAMILY WEALTH PRESERVATION: INCOME TAXATION OF ESTATES AND TRUSTS

This course focuses on the income-tax principles involved in the operation of estates and trusts, including special types of trusts such as grantor and employee trusts. The taxation of grantors, descendants and beneficiaries is also explored.

ACCT 637: TAXATION OF FOREIGN TRANSACTIONS AND TAXPAYERS

This course provides students with an understanding of taxation of foreign income of U.S. citizens and corporations, taxation of foreign persons and corporations on their income from U.S. sources, and tax considerations in organizing foreign business operations.

ACCT 661: STATE AND LOCAL TAXES

Students gain an understanding of the structure of state and local taxes; the principles governing income, sales, property and other taxes levied by state and local governments; and the interrelationship of state, local and federal taxes.

ACCT 668: REAL ESTATE TAXATION

Prerequisites: Acct 509, Acct 520. This course provides students with an opportunity to learn about specialized and emerging topics in the field of real estate taxation.

TAX PLANNING FOCUS (2 UNITS)

ACCT 650: CONTEMPORARY TAX PLANNING ISSUES SEMINAR

Students participate in a seminar focusing on contemporary tax-planning issues affecting local industries.

CULMINATING EXPERIENCE (1 UNIT)

As part of their culminating experience, students have the option of participating in either a Tax Challenge Project or a Tax Clinic.

ACCT 698A: TAX CLINIC

The tax clinic requires the student to assist low-income taxpayers facing a controversy with the Internal Revenue Service. Students may also facilitate educational seminars on tax issues to taxpayers in our community, or prepare federal and state income tax returns for low-income taxpayers in the community.

ACCT 698B: TAX CHALLENGE PROJECT

This project requires the student to conduct in-depth tax research relating to a complex, hypothetical tax problem, then draft and present a report in which the issues are analyzed and a sound course of remedial action is proposed.

A VISIONARY GIFT

In 2005, Harvey Bookstein (B.A., Accounting, 1970), together with his wife Harriet, created the Bookstein Institute for Higher Education in Taxation at CSUN and endowed the Harvey and Harriet Bookstein Chair in Taxation, the first endowed chair in the David Nazarian College of Business and Economics. The Bookstein's gift was among CSUN's largest from an alumnus.

Through the Bookstein's generosity and support, the MST program provides a number of scholarships to students who demonstrate excellence and promise.

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

Applicants must meet CSUN admission requirements as listed in the University Catalog. In addition, applicants must have successfully completed an introduction to federal income taxation course, an introduction to financial accounting course, and an introduction to computers course – all of which may be taken at any accredited institution of higher education. Applicants must also submit two letters of recommendation from supervisors or professors.

GMAT exam is not required for applicants with a 3.0 or higher undergraduate degree GPA, or applicants who are CPAs, Enrolled Agents, or have more than four years of relevant work experience in taxation.

Admission to this program is highly selective. The ideal candidate would be a midcareer professional committed to pursuing a career in taxation. In addition, the candidate would exhibit an ability to collaborate and work effectively with others.

A typical successful applicant is a CPA or Enrolled Agent, who has a GPA of 3.2 in the last 60 units, and three years of work experience in the tax field. International applicants must demonstrate a minimum TOEFL Paper-Based score of 550, a minimum Computer-Based score of 213 or a minimum Internet-based score of 79/80; or a minimum International English Language Testing System (IELTS) score of 6.5 or higher; or a minimum score of 58 with the Pearson's Test of English (PTE).

For more information, please contact the Program Coordinator at mstaxation@csun.edu or (818) 677-3952.

CSUN | BOOKSTEIN
INSTITUTE

THE BOOKSTEIN INSTITUTE

The Bookstein Institute for Higher Education in Taxation is the focal point for tax education within the David Nazarian College of Business and Economics at California State University, Northridge. The Bookstein Institute serves as the hub for education, scholarship and community service in taxation in the greater San Fernando Valley.

Los Angeles philanthropist and co-founding partner of RBZ, LLP (now Armanino, LLP), Harvey Bookstein ('70), established the Bookstein Institute with his wife, Harriet, in 2005. It has been instrumental in the launching of the MST program. The efforts of those involved in the Bookstein Institute enable us to lay the groundwork for future programs focused on advancing tax education for professionals in the surrounding area.

The Bookstein Institute provides professional growth and development opportunities through advanced studies in taxation, scholarly research, networking events and service-learning projects in taxation. The Bookstein Institute promotes and supports activities that encourage a greater understanding of the dynamic field of taxation.

With the support of the Bookstein Institute, CSUN's MST program continues to enhance its reputation as a destination program for professionals who excel and strive to enhance their expertise in taxation.

In the photo above, Mr. and Mrs. Bookstein are shown with the plaque awarded by the University to commemorate the inception of the Bookstein Chair and the Bookstein Institute.

DEPARTMENT OF ACCOUNTING AND INFORMATION SYSTEMS

The Department of Accounting and Information Systems in CSUN's David Nazarian College of Business and Economics offers two undergraduate degrees: the Bachelor of Science in Accountancy and the Bachelor of Science in Information Systems.
